NORTHERN DESIGN AWARDS CELEBRATE 15 YEARS IN MANCHESTER

Design's leading lights are honoured at the 15th annual Northern Design Awards

On Friday (24th November), hundreds of leading designers assembled at the striking Principal Hotel in Manchester to find out which individuals and companies would be walking away with one of the North's most prestigious design awards.

During the 15th Northern Design Awards ceremony, the evening's hosts, world-renowned designer Wayne Hemingway and Event Director, Shelley Bond, both gave rousing speeches about the role design can play in improving our lives, highlighting the great work that's being done within the design sector in the North.

Shelley Bond said: "We were proud to welcome so many talented individuals and fantastic companies to Manchester for our 15th annual awards. The Principal Hotel provided a very fitting setting for the awards and guests were addressed with a speech from the Lord Mayor before the awards presentation addressing the Lord Mayor's Charity goals for the cause, "We Love Manchester" and asking guests to donate generously.

Director, Shelley Bond said of the event; "With the support of our enormously well respected panel of judges, our host, Wayne Hemingway, and long standing sponsors such as Trombé, not to mention the hugely talented people who entered the awards, this event keeps going from strength to strength and having hosted awards in Leeds, Buxton, Chester and Liverpool in the past we're already considering where to hold our 16th awards ceremony next year."

This year's judging panel featured Wayne Hemingway, Nick Munro, BIID President Susie Rumbold and internationally renowned designer, George Bond, plus the influential designer, Linda Barker. Details of the line-up for next year's awards will be released on the Northern Design Awards website over the coming months.
